'It is but the cloudes gathered about our owne judgement that makes us thinke all other ages wrapt up in mistes, and the great distance betwixt us that causes us to imagine men so farre off to be so little in respect of ourselves.'

§ I.

N the year 1071 died Leofric, first Bishop of Exeter, sometime Chancellor of England, the friend and favourite of Edward the Confessor, a distinguished disciple of the Lotharingian schools. Contemporary accounts have come down to us describing the pomp which attended the bishop's installation; how, in the presence of the chieftains of the realm, supported by the king on his right and by the noble Eadgitha on his left, he ascended his episcopal throne in the ancient minster of St. Mary and St. Peter the Apostle. The minster, when it came into his possession, had been despoiled of its lands and of nigh all its ecclesiastical appurtenances; 'of twenty-six estates which the pious king Athelstane had conferred upon it scarce one remained.' During the twenty years of his rule, Leofric's energies and wealth were devoted to the restoration of its former fortunes, and when he died he left it more richly endowed than it had ever been before. But he bequeathed to his cathedral-church something besides a magnificent rent-roll,—something even more precious. When he took office, the library at Exeter was in a pitiable condition; he found there nothing but five worthless service-books; at his death it numbered no less than sixty volumes,—Bibles, service-books, homiletic literature, theological commentaries, and the chief classics of those days, to wit, the works of Statius, Prudentius, Prosper, and Boethius. Leofric's library at Exeter did not, it is true, number as many volumes as some of the rich Anglo-Saxon libraries of which we have record; it certainly did not rival Archdeacon Egbert's famous collection at York, that called forth Alcuin's enthusiastic praise :—

' Illic invenies veterum vestigia patrum, Quidquid habet pro se Latio Romanus in orbe, Græcia vel quidquid transmisit clara Latinis ;
 Hebraicus vel quod populus bibit imbre superno ;'

nevertheless, one item in the catalogue of Leofric's books places him in the first rank of our early bibliophiles, and has earned for him, or should earn for him, the undying gratitude of his countrymen. In the catalogue, which is extant, writ in choicest Anglo-Saxon, there is an entry which runs as follows :—

' 1. mycel Ænglisc boc be gehwilcum þingum on leodþwisan getworht ;

i.e. 'A great English book on all sorts of subjects wrought in verse.' Happily, we have not to bewail the loss of the volume thus described. Exeter Cathedral still cherishes the possession of this most glorious relic of pre-Conquest literature. The 'Exeter Book,' the name by which it should be known to Englishmen all over the world, may well claim to be the noblest product of early Teutonic genius. True, it cannot boast of great beauty of workmanship,—it is not, like the 'Codex Argenteus,' written on purple vellum in letters of silver and gold; no wondrous miniatures adorn its pages, like the 'Book of Kells,'—'Angles,' not 'Angels,' wrought it,—but its contents claim for it a higher consideration than even the supreme philological interest of the former and the artistic glories of the latter. It has preserved for us a whole library of national literature, that would otherwise have been irrevocably lost; it is in itself a 'bibliotheca' rather than a 'book.'

It is not my purpose on this occasion to dwell on the contents of the volume; a study of the 'Exeter Book' would practically amount to a survey of old English poetry through all its varied vicissitudes, harking back to the songs that glee-men sang before the legions of imperial Rome surrendered Britain to its fatal conflict with barbaric Teuton. Fierce and brutal as were these pirate-hordes towards their foes, yet their harps were attuned to tender strains as they sang their sailor-songs of the dear ones left behind :—

‘ To the Frisian wife comes a dear welcome-guest ;
the keel is at rest ;
his vessel is come ;
her husband is home ;
her own cherished lord
she leads to the board ;
his wet weeds she wrings ;
dry garments she brings.
Ah ! happy is he,
whom safe from the sea
his true love awaits !’¹

But, for the most part, the Anglo-Saxons took to their poetry very sadly. The prevailing note of the old English lyric is elegiac ; intense melancholy, harmonising with the gloom of Northern sea and sky, with the fatalism of their Pagan faith, is the one mood reflected in the subjective poems of the ‘ Exeter Book ’ :—

‘ Ah ! thou bright cup ! Ah, thou mailed warrior !
Ah ! the glory of my lord ! Now has the time passed, darkened ’neath the veil of night, as if it ne’er had been.
Where once loved warriors trod, now stands
a wall of wondrous height, worm-eaten, grim ;
the might of the spears, slaughter-loving weapons,
has swept away the chiefs,—theirs was a glorious fate,— but storms lash the rocky slopes, and falling snowdrift binds the earth,
and all the winter’s terror, when the dark night falls

¹ From the Gnomic Verses of the Exeter Book ; the rime is a mere accident of the translation.

with its black shadow, and summons from the north fierce storms, to the grievance of mankind.
All the realm of earth is full of hardship,
the world 'neath heaven is turned by fate's decree.'¹

This turn for melancholy is an abiding element in English poetry throughout its history; there can be little question that it is essentially an English characteristic, despite Matthew Arnold's oft-quoted dictum that it is altogether derived from Celtic source. But while the note of the old English lyric is elegiac, as far as its form is concerned it belongs to the epic,—the all-absorbing art-form of our oldest poetry. Epic dignity and distinction, not lyrical rapidity of movement, mark even the shortest of Anglo-Saxon songs.

And what better instrument for the grand epic style than the wondrous blank verse—the old alliterative line—of these ancient poets. Critics of Elizabethan literature delight to dwell on 'the mighty line' created by the greatest of Shakespeare's predecessors; but, ten centuries before Marlowe's genius impressed itself on the English drama, English poetry had already 'unlocked the secret of blank verse,' and had played upon 'its hundred stops.' The secret of Marlowe's great discovery lies in this, that he Teutonised the 'versi sciolti' imported from Italy, and unconsciously imparted thereto the flexibility and vigour that characterised the national metre used by the oldest of English poets, whose work has come down to us. The high seriousness and earnestness of old English poetry ; its epic style, absorbing lyrical and even dramatic elements ; its subjectivity and melancholy ; its subtle power of thoroughly nationalising foreign materials ; its rich vocabulary and phraseology ; the wonder of its varying verse, expressive of every shade of human emotion ; its artistic consciousness ; its avoidance of anything approaching mediæval grotesqueness,—all these qualities distinguish the remarkable poem which holds the first place in the Codex Exoniensis. This poem, which is probably the oldest Christiad of modern Europe, is herewith introduced to English readers, its text carefully studied and interpreted.

The text is based on the editor's unpublished edition of the Exeter MS., in preparation for the Early English Text Society. The variations from the MS. will be found in 'Critical Notes' at the end of the volume.¹ The MS. has been followed minutely, not merely in the matter of spelling, but also as regards the divisions of the poem,—a matter of special importance hitherto neglected. Though there are no titles to the various passus, the scribe has clearly indicated the beginning of each by means of a long flourish of capital letters, distinguishing carefully the smaller sections from the main divisions. Thus, the MS. makes it certain that Passus III. begins with words 'Donne mid fere,' and does not include the previous section. External evidence corroborates this view. Appendix II. gives the source of Passus II. ; it is obvious that the final section of the passus is directly due to the final section of the homily. It is strange that Dietrich, who first called attention to the unity of the poem, and to the chief source of its second division, should have missed this point.

In Appendix I. I have printed fifty-eight lines hitherto regarded as part of the present poem, but most assuredly, if the original scribe may be credited, the opening lines of the 'Legend of St. Guthlac'; there is absolutely no break in the MS. between these lines and the passage usually printed as the first section of the latter poem. I make bold to suggest that the whole section is a prelude to 'St. Guthlac,' with motives derived from the concluding portion of the 'Christ.' Thorpe, the first editor of the Exeter MS., is no doubt answerable for this error, which even the ingenuity of Dietrich and Grein did not detect.¹

¹ Thorpe's Codex Exoniensis appeared just fifty years ago. Unfortunately, he failed to see the value of 'the first 106 pages' of his book (i.e. the portion containing the present poem); his comment ran as follows:—'Though interesting to the philologist, they possess little attraction for any other class of readers. The pieces they contain are, no doubt, translations from the Latin; but their subject is not of a nature to stimulate many to search after the originals, which, if discovered, would prove of little use in elucidating the

Appendix III. is a valuable contribution made by Professor Cook to the sources of the poem, and may be regarded as affording external evidence in favour of the theory propounded above concerning the limit of the third passus. It remains but to point out that unfortunately the first part of Passus I. is lost; to give to the epic the appearance of completeness a single word has been omitted; the capital letter at the beginning of the text has no MS. authority.¹ The frontispiece has been added to the volume as a specimen of Anglo-Saxon art, illustrative of the subject of the second part of the poem; it belongs to the famous series of miniatures that adorn the 'Benedictional of St. Æthelwold.'² obscurities, or correcting the errors of a version, in this and all similar cases yet known, too paraphrastic to admit of comparison.'

In 1853 Dietrich called attention to the unity of the poems, but as he had no opportunity of examining the MS., he did not perceive the real state of affairs, though he and others might have inferred it from Wanley's description of the MS. (v. page 280), where 'Passus' I., II., III., are styled 'Liber' I., II., III., though the connection of the 'Libri' was not noted. In 1857 Grein's Bibliothek included the 'Christ,' which was based on Thorpe's text. Grein accepted Dietrich's views on the subject of the poem, but printed it unnecessarily as one long poem, with twenty-two sections. In 1857 appeared the same scholar's 'Dichtungen der Angelsachsen stabreimend uebersezt.' Little has been done for the interpretation of the poem since Grein's monumental work, though the need of a new edition has been long felt. It is a strange fact that after 1100 years and more the 'Christ' now appears for the first time as a separate volume. The translation which accompanies the text is the first attempt that has been made to interpret the poem as a piece of English literature.

¹ Cf. note I. i. The initials at the commencement of Passus I., II., III., are taken from the Anglo-Saxon Codex Psalterii Vossianus (Bodleian Library), as reproduced in Professor Westwood's Facsimiles of Anglo-Saxon and Celtic Miniatures.

² Reproduced in reduced facsimile by Mr. Griggs, with kind permission, from the last-named book, (v. page 132.)

Long and patient search has failed to discover the source of Passus I. ; this failure is especially to be deplored as one would much wish to know from what original the poet evolved the earliest dramatic scene in English literature, (v. page 18.) What a contrast an Anglo-Saxon religious drama would have presented to the homely miracles and mysteries of later centuries! The original of the greater part of Passus I. must, I think, have been a Latin hymn-cycle, the 'Joseph and Mary' section being derived from an undiscovered hymn arranged for recital by half-choirs. The crude materials used for Passus II. and III., printed at the end of the volume, attest in a remarkable way the transforming power of the poet ; the well-sustained simile that closes Passus II. owes its existence to the words in the last section of St. Gregory's Homily, 'Quamvis adhuc rerum perturbationibus animus fluctuet.' The passages in the Appendix form a valuable commentary to the greater part of the text.

The Exeter MS. was written some time in the tenth century, or early in the eleventh ; the bulk of its contents is, however, at least two centuries older. Its dialect is West-Saxon, or 'Anglo-Saxon,' as it is generally called, but one is able to detect in a number of the poems the fossil remains of another and an older dialect. Minute philological criteria lead to the conclusion, supported strongly by other evidence, that the first of the poems preserved in the codex, and many more besides, are Saxon (i.e. Southern) transcriptions of Anglian (i.e. Northern) originals. Wessex merely preserved the poems, Northumbria produced them. Indeed at no time in its history has Wessex been productive of poetical work; from the days of Alfred onward its special strength lay in prose literature. Did not Chaucer recognise the fact when he made his parson exclaim:—

‘Trusteth wel, I am a Sotherne man,
I cannot geste, rom, ram, ruf, by my letter,
And God wote, rime hold I but litel better,
And therefore if you list I wol not glose,
I wol you tell a litel tale in prose.’

It seems almost certain then that the ‘Christ’ is an Anglian poem, written before Northumbria ceased to be the great centre of poetical activity, i.e. before the beginning of the ninth century, and critics are at one in placing the ‘floruit’ of its poet during the second half of the eighth century. The poet in question has bequeathed to us his name by a strange device; by means of mystic runes Cynewulf worked a subtle spell whereby his authorship of this and of three other poems is incontestably established. In an ‘Excursus on Cynewulf Runes,’ at the end of the volume, I have considered the many questions at issue concerning this important point. It remains but to add that I am sceptical on the subject of the supposed charade-character of the so-called ‘First Riddle.’ Interesting attempts have been made to write the biography of the poet ;¹ it is not my purpose in this place to attempt a similar task, which would involve a discussion of the whole problem of Cynewulf's relation to the extant remains of Anglo-Saxon poetry. In conclusion, I would apply to our poet the commendation bestowed by an old historian on one of Cynewulf's masters and predecessors, whose fame rests solely on his Latin verse, though he too composed in the vernacular :—

² Quoted by Samuel Daniel in his Defence of Ryme, concerning ‘Aldelmus Durotelmus, of whom we find this commendation registered’; the lines occur in an interesting passage on the learning of Saxon England, whence, too, the quotation that heads this Introduction. If only the old Elizabethans had known of Cynewulf.

that thou shouldst be the head of this great hall,

Show now thy skill! reveal thy handiwork firm-set in sovran splendour! yea, leave anon the opposing walls erect! The work hath need now that the Craftsman and the King Himself should come,
and should restore the house, which lieth waste beneath the roof. He formed the body erst, and the limbs of clay; now shall He, Lord of life,
deliver from their foes this abject throng,
these wretched ones from terror, as He oft did.

*Forsooth in very need we speak these words ;
Him who created man we supplicate, that He elect not to declare in hate the doom of us who sad in prison here sit yearning for the sun's propitious course.
When the Lord of life revealeth light to us,
be He the guardian-angel of our souls,
and wreathe the feeble mind with radiant grace.
May He glorify us thus, His favoured ones, when we must needs depart in abject plight unto this narrow land, bereft of home.*

*Verily he may say it, who speaketh truth,
that when the race of man was all depraved,
He came and rescued it. Young was the maiden, a damsel sinless, whom He chose as mother.
It came to pass without the love of man,
that the bride was great by child-conception.
Never before or after in the world was any meed of woman like to that ;
it was a secret mystery of the Lord.
All ghostly grace o'erspread the realm of earth, and many a thing became illumined then through life's Creator, teachings of ancient day, which lay concealed beneath the veil of night,
the sages' songs prophetic, ere the Ruler came,*

the souls of whom alone rest in thee ever,

shall ever be beheld in that abode,
but every sin shall flee afar from thee, all curse and conflict; thou art gloriously full of holy promise, e'en as thou art named.
See now thyself how all the wide creation and heaven's roof surveyeth thee about, on every side, and how the King of heaven
seeketh thee in His course, and cometh Himself, and taketh His dwelling in thee, as in days of yore soothsayers so wise declared in words;
they made known Christ's birth; they told it for thy comfort, thou best of cities! Now the Child is come, awakened to destroy the Hebrews' works;
He bringeth thee joy; He looseneth thy bonds;
He hath adventured Him for men; He knoweth their need,— yea, how the wretched must await compassion.*

*that the Son Himself of the all-ruling Lord would purify the nations of the earth, and in His course would seek too the abyss, by the might of His spirit. Patiently have they waited in their fetters, till God's Child should come to the afflicted ; wherefore spake thus those cast in torments :—' Come thou now thyself, Souran of heaven ! bring us salvation,
weary thralls oppressed, worn out with weeping, with bitter burning tears. With thee alone resteth their cure for those in direst need.
Visit us here, captives so sad of mood,
nor leave behind thee, when thou turn'st from hence,
so great a throng ! but royally show forth thy mercy unto us, O Saviour Christ !
O Prince of glory ! let not the accursed hold sway o'er us ; thy glory's endless joy vouchsafe to us, that those may worship thee, great Lord of hosts, whom thou createdst erst with thine own hands. Thou in the heights above dwellest for ever with the all-ruling Father.'*

*that from the glorious temple of the Lord
I joyfully received a maiden pure, immaculate ; and now all this is changed, through whom I know not. Neither availeth me, to speak or to be silent ; speak I the truth,
then must David's daughter suffer death, slain with stones ; yet 'tis a harder lot to conceal the crime, and to be doomed to live a perjurer, henceforth loathed by all the folk, accursed 'mong men.' Then did the maid unravel the mystery so true, and thus she spake :—*

*' Truly I say, by the Son of the Creator, the Saviour of souls, that yet I know not in conjugal communion any man anywhere on earth ; but it was granted me, while still a damsel young and in my home,
that Gabriel, heaven's archangel, bade me hail,
and said in very truth, that heaven's Spirit should with His ray illumine me, that I should bear life's Glory, an illustrious Son, the mighty Child of God, the bright Creator. Now, without guilt, am I become His temple ; the Spirit of comfort hath dwelt within me. Wherefore dismiss thou now all sorry care, and say eternal thanks to the Lord's great Son, that I became His mother,*

There liveth not a mortal under heaven,

took thee in the beginning for His noble child.
Of all the things that mankind hath e'er heard here upon earth, this thing first came to pass beneath the clouds, that God Omniscient, the Source of life, parted in sovran will
the light from darkness, wielding His decree;
and thus He, Lord of hosts, commanded then:—*

'Let there be light for ever and for ever, a radiant joy for each of living men who in their generations shall be born.'

*And so it came to pass, when 'twas ordained;
a splendour shining bright amidst the stars lighted, through the course of time, the tribes of men.*

and with all eagerness, he worship God.
He will be recompensed for his sweet love,
yea, by the hallowed Saviour Himself, e'en in that home where he came ne'er before,
the happy land where the immortals are ;
there blessed shall he abide for evermore,
and dwell eternally, world without end. Amen.*

*Seek earnestly, with all thy secret lore,
with all thy faculties, thou mighty man,
with the wisdom of thy soul, that thou may'st know, how it befell, when the Omnipotent was born unto the world in purity, when he had chosen Mary as protector, glory of maidenhood, damsel renowned,
that there appeared not angels then arrayed in robes of white, whenas the noble Chief came into Bethlehem. Angels were ready, for they revealed in accents clear and told* *to shepherds the sure joy that there was born upon this middle-earth, in Bethlehem, the Son of the Creator.; yet in books it saith not that they appeared then at that glorious tide in robes of white, e'en as they did anon when the great Leader in Bethania, the Lord majestic, called His band of thanes,

the host beloved; on that welcome day they slighted not the word their Teacher spake, their bounteous Dispenser. Soon were they dight, men with their Master, for the holy burgh;
there Splendour's Lord, the Helm of bliss, revealed full many a sign to them in mystic words, ere He ascended, only begotten Son,
the Child with His own Father co-eternal;
then forty numbered days had run their course,
since He had risen first from earth, from death.
Then had He fulfilled the prophets' words,
as they had sung before throughout the world,
yea, by His passion. His servants lauded Him, they praised all-lovingly the Source of life,
the Father of creation! Wherefore in aftertime He nobly recompensed His comrades dear;
and these words spake the angels' mighty Lord, whilst hastening onward to His Father's realm:—*

cast them down and spurn them ; extinguish enmity, and sow ye peace within the minds of men,
by virtue of your gifts. I will abide with you in solace, and will keep you aye in peace, with sure unfailing strength in every place.'*

*Then suddenly a sound was heard on high,
loud in the air ; a band of heavenly angels,
a beauteous host, the messengers of glory,
in legion came ; our King departed thence,
e'en through the temple's roof, where they beheld,
they who were watching still the Dear One's track,
His chosen thanes, there in that meeting-place ;
they saw their Lord, the Child divine, ascend from earth into the heights ; sad were their souls ;
their spirit's grief burned hot within their hearts,*

high o'er the roofs. Joy was renewed and bliss in heaven's cities at the Prince's coming ;

triumphant, the eternal Source of good.*

*Sad then in spirit, went the valiant men and journeyed to Jerusalem's holy burgh, departing from the place where they so late beheld with their own eyes God rise aloft, their kind Dispenser. There was unbroken weeping, their faithful love was overwhelmed with grief,
their hearts were hot, their bosoms surged within,
their thoughts were all a-glow. His glorious thanes awaited there their Sovran Lord's behests, within that noble burgh, ten nights withal,
as He Himself, the Lord of heaven, bade, e'er He ascended in omnipotence to heaven's keeping, and white angels came toward the bounteous Prince of warrior-men.*

the Lord of hosts, willed to ascend on high unto the home of angels ; at that holy tide, the wish arose to help us, the forlorn.*

*Of Him sang Job a song as he well could ;
he praised the Helm of men, lauded the Saviour,
and in his love devised a noble name for the Ruler's Son, and named Him as a bird, a name which Jews might no wise understand.
By virtue of the Spirit's strength divine, whilom He came adown to earth again ;

He sought earth's region in His spirit's grace,

'fore warrior-bands one can awake the harp, the minstrel's joy. One can interpret well the law divine, and one the planets' course and wide creation. One cunningly can write the spoken word. To one He granteth skill, when in the fight the archers swiftly send the storm of darts, the wingéd javelin, over the shield's defence. Fearlessly another can o'er the salt sea urge the ocean-bark and stir the surging depth. One can ascend the lofty tree and steep. One can fashion well steeled sword and weapon. One knoweth the plains' direction, the wide ways. Thus the Ruler, Child divine, dispenseth unto us His gifts on earth ;
He will not give to any one man all the spirit's wisdom, lest pride injure him, raised far above the rest by his sole might.

IV.

Thus God Almighty, King of created things, ennobleth by unsparing gifts, by crafts, the progeny of earth, and giveth joy unto the blessed in heaven, and setteth peace for angels and for men to all eternity.

the Lord so strong in might, shall mount a hill, shall leap the lofty downs, and hills and knolls shall wreath with glory, and by that noble leap shall free the world and all that dwell on earth.'

*The first leap was, when He came to the damsel, the spotless maid, and sinlessly took there a human form, and was anon the solace of all mankind. The second leap was this,— the Infant's birth, when He was in the manger, the Glory of all Glories swathed in clothes, in form of child. The heavenly King's career was the third leap, when He, the Father's Solace, ascended on the rood. Into the sepulchre was the fourth leap, when He had left the tree and lay within that cave. The fifth leap was, when He bowed down the multitude of hell in living torment, and bound their king within,
the devils' advocate, so grim of mood,
with fiery fetters, where he lieth yet, fastened in prison there with manacles, and shackled with his sins. The sixth leap was the revel of the Holy, when He rose unto His ancient home ; the angelic host was blithe with sweetest laughter and with joy on that holy tide ; they saw the Crown of Glory,*

the noble Chief, approach those bright abodes, His Fatherland. That revel of the Prince brought endless joy to those blessed denizens.

*Thus God's eternal Child, here upon earth, sprang boldly o'er the lofty hills, by leaps,
from mount to mount ; and e'en so must we men,
with our hearts' inmost thoughts, by such leaps, spring from virtue unto virtue, and for glory strive, so that through holy works we may ascend to the highest height, where there is joy and bliss and ministering legions. Great is our need to seek salvation there with all our hearts, where earnestly in spirit we repose,
so that the Saviour-Child, the living God,
may with our bodies soar aloft from hence.*

*Wherefore we must contemn all idle lusts and wounds of sin, and cherish goodlier things ;
we have our solace in the Omnipotent, our Father in heaven ; He, the Holy One, will send His angels hither from on high to shield us from the noxious arrow-shafts of those that work our bane, lest gruesome fiends should deal us wounds, whenas the Enemy,

among the folk of God from his drawn bow.*

*Verily must we keep constant watch,
and must beware, against the sudden shot,
lest the envenomed point, the bitter dart,
the fiends' pernicious artifice, should strike beneath the bones' enclosure ; its wound is grievous, the ghastliest of gashes. May we guard us then, whilst we hold habitation upon earth ;
and be we wishful for the Father's peace ;
pray we the Son of God, and the kindly Spirit,
that He protect us from the spoilers' weapons,
the wiles of foes ; He gave us life and limb, body and eke soul ; ever to Him be praise and glory in the heavens, world without end !*

V.

Not any of the race of men on earth need ever dread him of the devils' shafts, the fiends' spear-storm, if God, the Lord of hosts, protecteth him. The day of doom is nigh, when each of us shall gain the recompense that by our works we have through life amassed on this wide world. 'Tis told to us in books, how the Treasury of glory, God's noble Son, descended humbly to this middle-earth,

Wherefore would I instruct each well-beloved,
lest he be careless of his spirit's need,
or pour it forth in boasting, whilst God willeth that he may here abide within the world, whilst soul with body, the guest-house it is in,
may journey on together. It behoveth each,
during his life-days, to remember well,
how all-benign was the Omnipotent
when He first came, e'en as the angel spake.
He will be stern then, when He cometh again, wrathful and rigorous. The heavens shall quail, and all the great estates of middle-earth shall quake, when He, bright King, requiteth them, for that they lived on earth in wickedness, stained with transgression ; wherefore they shall long,
weary of life, beset with flames, endure dire retribution in a sea of fire, when the great King in highest majesty to that tribunal cometh ; then men's dismay, the cry of anguish, shall be heard aloud amid the noises of the heavens ; sadly shall they bewail before the eternal Judge, who have but faint reliance in their works.*

we should bethink us of our spirit's grace.*

*Now 'tis most like as if we fare in ships on the ocean-flood, over the water cold, driving our vessels through the spacious seas with horses of the deep. A perilous way is this of boundless waves, and these are stormy seas, on which we toss here in this feeble world, o'er the deep paths. Ours was a sorry plight, until at last we sailed unto the land,
over the troubled main. Help came to us,

*WITH sudden fear, at midnight, direfully, the great day of the Lord Omnipotent

some daring thief that prowleth in the dark, in the swart night, surpriseth suddenly and basely challengeth them unprepared.

Then unto Zion's hill a mighty host,
radiant and blissful, shall ascend together,
the faithful of the Lord ; glory shall be theirs.
Then, too, from all four corners of the world,
from furthest regions of the realm of earth, resplendent angels shall with one accord sound their loud trumpets, and mid-earth shall quake beneath the feet of men. Gloriously and long* with greatest majesty shall thither come to that noble hill ; glorious o'er His hosts, the Sovran Lord in holiness shall shine ;

and, Him around, the goodliest chivalry,
the holy warrior-band, blessed angel-troop, shall brightly gleam ; in terror of the Father,
their inmost thoughts afeared, e'en they shall quake.*

*Yea, 'tis no wonder that the race unclean of worldly men should sorely be adread, should direfully lament, when the holy race,
so white and heavenly bright, the archangels' host,
before that Presence is with fear aghast ; trembling the radiant beings shall abide their Sovran's doom. Most terrible of days that day shall be, whenas the glorious King shall mightily o'erwhelm the nations all,
and bid eash folk, creatures with speech endowed,
arise from out their earthly sepulchres,
and come each man to that assemblage there.
Full quickly then shall Adam's kin take flesh ;*

of mortals' inmost thoughts, but that great day shall there disclose the locked mind's treasury, the meditations of men's hearts. Erewhile must he bethink him of his spirit's need,
who fain would bring to God an aspect fair,
when that devouring fire before the Judge assayeth how souls have been restrained from sin.
Lo, then the trumpet's voice, the standard bright,
the glowing fire, the glorious chivalry,
the noble throng of angels, the pang of terror,
the day so stern, and the exalted rood, rightwise raised up in sign of mastery,
shall summon forward all the hosts of men,
the souls of all that from eternal time took limb within the body's covering.
A mighty host, deathless, with youth renewed, shall pass before the Sovran's presence there by dire compulsion forced, yea, called by name, bearing before God's Child their bosom's hoard, their spirit's treasures ; then will the Father see how all unmarred His sons may bring their souls e'en from that land wherein they lived erewhile.
They shall be bold that bring unto the Lord

nathless shall it discomfort and torment

for that He hung upon the holy tree, all for the base misdeeds of human kind.

came gushing forth before the people there,
before their eyes, while He was on the rood.
All this may they themselves there contemplate for love of men, for wicked sinners' sake ; the sons of men may easily perceive how they, false in their thoughts, belied Him then, mocked Him with insult, and upon His face

how sorely mourned they, though they were not quick, when impious men with sinful hands did seize darkened with misery ; and in Jerusalem

the people saw the choicest of all webs, that multitudes were wont to marvel at,
the glory of the holy house of God,
they saw it rent, so that in pieces twain
it lay upon the earth ; the temple's veil, with wondrous colours wrought to deck that house,
was riven asunder, as a falchion's edge, full sharp, had passed there-through. Stone walls a-many,
throughout earth's tract, with headlong ruin fell ;
and all the earth was troubled sore with fear,
and quaked with sudden shock ; the spacious sea showed forth its mighty power, and burst its bonds, and o'er earth's bosom dashed in angry mood ;
yea, in their radiant homes the stars then lost their winsome beauty ; at that self-same time grief vanished from their souls. Lo ! too, the sea declared who set it on its spacious bed,— the glorious King ; certes, it made a path for Him to tread, when God desired to fare o'er the ocean-waves ; the water durst not then submerge its Master's feet with flowing tide.

Yea, many a tree, not few, likewise proclaimed

for that alone were seized with sudden fear, and sad became ; in their inherent nature, though they no mental understanding had,
yet wondrously they knew it, when their Lord forth from His body fared. Benighted men, harder than flints, would not acknowledge then their Maker, that the Lord, Almighty God, had saved them from the agonies of hell,
e'en by His holy might, nor that of yore,
in the world's beginning, the prophets of the Lord,
far-seeing men, holy and wise of mind,
had told to folk anent the noble Child,
oft-times, not once, by wisdom of their souls, that through the noble woman He should be

Grievous indeed shall be their lot, who damned

with His own body ransomed them from sin,

of their ill-deeds, and have the endless bliss of heavenly glory. They did not know the thanks due to their Sovran for this heritage ; wherefore, to their affliction, shall they see direst affliction for their former deeds ;

There they abashed, o'erwhelmed with ignominy, shall wander giddily, bearing their evil deeds,
the burden of their sins, whilst all folk gaze ;
'twere better for them had they erst felt shame for each base deed and each transgression, for all their evil works, before one man, telling God's servant that too well they knew ill-deeds within them. The confessor cannot look through the flesh unto the soul, whether a man telleth truth or lie, when he his sins avoweth ;
nathless a wight can heal each noxious ill,
each unclean sin, if he tell it but to one ;
and none may there conceal, on that stern day,
guilt unamended ; multitudes shall see it.
Verily, we shall then, with bodily sight, behold the wounds of sin upon our souls,
our base iniquities, our inmost thoughts of wickedness, our unclean cogitations.
Not any man may tell it to another,
with how great zeal, by every artifice,
each mortal striveth to attain life's goal,
anxious to protract existence forth,
to wash sin's rust away, afflicting himself,*

*Now, with the mind's eye, it behoveth us, with wisdom, fain to pierce the bosom's case unto the sin within,—with our other eyes, the jewels of the head, we may no whit survey the hidden home of inmost thought, whether good or ill abide there in those depths,—
so that at that dread time God may be pleased, when, from His lofty throne, with flame all-pure,
He shall shine in glory o'er the multitudes ;
and before angels and before all folks
He shall speak first unto the happiest there, and lovingly shall promise them His grace ;
yea, with His holy voice, the Heaven's high King shall gently comfort them, and grant them peace, and He shall bid them then, all safe and blessed,

Now will I let that ancient story pass,

when I had given thee all these goodly things, nathless it seemed unto thy mind withal too little bliss, if thou mightst not possess fulness of power equally with God ;
then thou becamest, to thy foes' delight,
an alien to that joy, cast out afar ;
perforce then hadst thou sadly to forego

a craven wight and wretched, cut off from all its blessings and its mirths ; then wast thou driven into this gloomy world, where thou hast suffered,

*endured the suffering of their baleful strokes ;
oft on My visage spittle fell from mouths of impious workers of iniquity ;
they mingled, too, for Me full bitterly an unsweet drink of vinegar and gall ;
for mankind bore I then the wrath of foes ;
they followed Me with torments ; reckless in hate,
they struck Me with their scourges,—all that pain,
their scorn and cruel gibes, in humbleness
I bore for thee,—and round about My head a bitter-biting crown they bent anon, fiercely they pressed it on,—'twas wrought of thorns.
Then was I hanged upon a lofty tree, and fastened to a rood ; with a spear there from my side they poured out on to earth My blood and gore. That thou thereby shouldst be delivered from the devil's tyranny, all sinless suffered I this punishment,
this sore affliction, till from my body
the living spirit sent I forth alone.
See now the fatal wounds they made of yore upon My palms and eke upon My feet, by which I hung full firmly fastened there ;
here mayest thou see, too, manifest e'en yet,
the gory wound, the gash upon My side.*

*How unequal was the reckoning 'twixt us two !
I there received thy pain that thou in bliss mightst happily enjoy My native realm ;
and dearly by My death I bought for thee long life, that thou mightst thenceforth evermore dwell in the light, beauteous, void of sin.
My body's flesh, the which had harmed no man,
lay buried in the earth, hidden deep beneath, down in its sepulchre, that thou mightst shine mighty 'mid angels, in the skies above.
Wherefore didst thou forsake the beauteous life, which graciously I bought for thee, in love,
with Mine own body, to help thee in thy plight ?
So witless wast thou, that thou didst not show
thanks to thy Lord for thy redemption.
Nought claim I now for that sore death of Mine,
so bitter, which I there endured for thee,
but render Me thy life, for which, in martyrdom,
I gave thee formerly Mine own as price.
I claim of thee the life thou hast so sinfully destroyed to thine own shame, with base transgression.
Why hast thou wittingly with filth defiled,
through wicked lust and through foul sinfulness,
the tabernacle I sanctified in thee,
to be the cherished home of My delight ?*

Then over all of them, over that fated folk, the Lord of triumph shall Himself send forth a dreadful edict, full of tribulation, and to that host of sinful souls shall say:—
'Go now accursed, wilfully cut off from angels' joy, into eternal fire, which, hot and fiercely grim, was dight of yore
for the devil, Satan, and his comrades eke, and all that swarthy shoal; therein shall ye fall.'

They may not then deride, bereft of rede,

*He shall sweep the victor-sword with His right hand, that the devils shall fall down the deep abyss into swart flame ; the bands of sinful ones into earth's realm beneath ; the fated spirits into the camp of foes ; the guilty shoal, damned to perdition, into the prison-house, the devil's death-hall. Ne'er shall they seek again remembrance of the Lord, nor 'scape their sins, but, crime-stained, they shall there, bewrapt with flame endure destruction ; vengeance for their sins shall they see revealed ; that is eternal death ;
through all the livelong night the fiery gulf
may ne'er avail to purge their sins away from that hell-race, the stain from off their soul.
But the deep pit feedeth still the weary ones ;
bottomless it keepeth the spirits in its gloom ;
with its old flame it burneth them ; and with terrors chill, with hateful serpents, and with torments many,
with sharp and deadly jaws, it scatheth folk.
Wherefore we may believe and aye declare,

When the evil-doer, afeared before his Maker,
at the judgment standeth, black and foul with death, accursed with crime, then shall the treacherous wight of life unworthy, be fulfilled of fire, and overwhelmed with terror before God ;
sightless and swart, he shall have a felon's hue, the token of a life of perfidy. The sons of men shall then shed tears and shall bewail their sins, when time availeth not ; too late shall they devise help for their spirits, when the Lord of hosts will not give heed how base transgressors there, the beauty of his soul, after God's will ;

let him be wary in his words and works,
his habits and his thoughts, while this world here,
speeding with mystic shadows, may still shine for him,
so that he lose not in this fading time
the blossom of his joy, the number of his days,
the beauty of his work, and glory's recompense, which heaven's righteous King dispenseth then,
at that holy time, as the rewards of victory,
to those who fain, with all their soul, obey Him.
All heaven and hell shall then become fulfilled with the sons of men, with the souls of mortal men ;
the abyss shall gorge the adversaries of God ;
the flickering flame shall harass erring folk, workers of injury, and shall not let them thence depart in joy unto security ;
the fire shall keep that host immovable ;
it shall vex mankind. Foolhardy me thinketh it, that men, creatures with soul endowed, will not be heedful in their minds, since that their Sovran may put, in vengeance, upon hateful folk any evil whatsoe'er. When life and death*

*shall gain their share of souls, the house of torment shall be full manifest to perjurers' sight ;
sin-loving men, with swarthy souls, shall fill it.
Then, in retribution for their sins,
the shoal of guilty ones shall be disparted,
the base from the holy, unto pernicious death ;
there thieves, and such as wrought cruel injury,
liars and adulterers, shall have no hope of life ;
and the forsworn shall see their crimes' reward, grievous and fiercely grim ; then hell shall take the host of faithless ones ; the Lord shall give them in perdition to the fiends ; sinners shall endure dire racking agony ; wretched shall he be who fain doth wickedly ; as a guilty wretch upon that judgment-day shall he be severed from his Creator, doomed to the death below, among hell's race, adown in the hot fire,
'neath the barriers of flame ; there shall men stretch their limbs, to be bound and to be burnt anon, and to be scourged, in punishment for sin.*

*Then the Holy Spirit, through the might of God,
at the King's command, shall lock the gates of hell,
the worst of torture-houses, full of fire, with the host of fiends therein ; for devils and for men this torment shall be direst. That is a joyless home ;*

*' Now thou mayst depart whither thou wast yearning longtime and often ; I am to lead thee ;
the ways shall be pleasant for thee, and the glory's bright light shall be revealed ; thou art now a traveller

II. HOMILIA IN ASCENSIONE DOMINI.

(Cp. passus secundus.)

(§ 9.) Hoc autem nobis primum quærendum est, quidnam fit quod nato Domino apparuerunt Angeli, et tamen non leguntur in albis vestibus apparuisse: ascendente autem Domino missi Angeli in albis leguntur vestibus apparuisse. Sic etenim scriptum est: Videntibus illis elevatus est, et nubes suscepit eum ab oculis eorum. Cumque intuerentur in cælum euntem illum, ecce duo viri steterunt juxta illos in vestibus albis. In albis autem vestibus gaudium et solemnitas mentis ostenditur. Quid est ergo quod nato Domino, non in albis vestibus; ascendente autem Domino, in albis vestibus Angeli apparent: nisi quod tunc magna solemnitas Angelis facta est, cum cælum Deus homo penetravit? Quia nascente Domino videbatur divinitas humiliata: ascendente vero Domino, est humanitas exaltata. Albæ etenim vestes exaltationi magis congruunt quam humiliationi. In assumptione ergo ejus Angeli in albis vestibus videri debuerunt: quia qui in nativitate sua apparuit Deus humilis, in Ascensione sua ostensus est homo sublimis.

(§ 10.) Sed hoc nobis magnopere, fratres carissimi, in hac solemnitate pensandum est: quia deletum est hodierna die chirographum damnationis nostræ, mutata est sententia corruptionis nostræ. Illa enim natura cui dictum est: Terra es, et in terram ibis, hodie in cælum ivit. Pro hac ipsa namque carnis nostræ sublevatione per figuram beatus Job Dominum avem vocat. Quia enim Ascensionis ejus mysterium Judæam non intelligere conspexit, de infidelitate ejus sententiam protulit, dicens: Semitam ignoravit avis. Avis enim recte appellatus est

Dominus; quia corpus carneum ad æthera libravit. Cujus avis semitam ignoravit quisquis eum ad cœlum ascendisse non credidit. De hac solemnitate per Psalmistam dicitur: Elevata est magnificentia tua super cœlos. De hac rursus ait: Ascendit Deus in jubilatione, et Dominus in voce tubæ. De hac iterum dicit: Ascendens in altum, captivam duxit captivitatem, dedit dona hominibus. Ascendens quippe in altum, captivam duxit captivitatem: quia corruptionem nostram virtute suæ incorruptionis absorbit. Dedit vero dona hominibus; quia misso desuper Spiritu, alii sermonem sapientiæ, alii sermonem scientiæ, alii gratiam virtutum, alii gratiam curationum, alii genera linguarum, alii interpretationem tribuit sermonum. Dedit ergo dona hominibus. De hac Ascensionis ejus gloria etiam Habacuc ait: Elevatus est sol, luna stetit in ordine suo. Quis enim solis nomine nisi Dominus, et quæ lunæ nomine nisi ecclesia designatur? Quousque enim Dominus ascendit ad cœlos, sancta ejus Ecclesia adversa mundi omnimodo formidavit: at postquam ejus Ascensione roborata est, aperte prædicavit, quod occulte credidit. Elevatus est ergo sol, et luna stetit in ordine suo: quia cum Dominus cœlum petiit, sancta ejus Ecclesia in auctoritate prædicationis excrevit. Hinc ejusdem Ecclesiæ voce per Salomonem dicitur: Ecce iste venit saliens in montibus, et transiliens colles. Consideravit namque tantorum operum culmina, et ait: Ecce iste venit saliens in montibus. Veniendo quippe ad redemptionem nostram, quosdam, ut ita dixerim, saltus dedit. Vultis, fratres carissimi, ipsos ejus saltus agnoscere? De cœlo venit in uterum, de utero venit in præsepe, de præsepe venit in crucem, de cruce venit in sepulcrum, de sepulcro rediit in cœlum. Ecce ut nos post se currere faceret, quosdam pro nobis xviii. 6. saltus manifestata per carnem veritas dedit: quia exultavit ut gigas ad currendam viam suam, ut nos ei diceremus ex corde:

i. 3. Trahe nos post te, curremus in odorem unguentorum tuorum.

num dentem in a sequi emus.

(§ 11.) Unde, fratres carissimi, oportet ut illuc sequamur corde, ubi eum corpore ascendisse credimus. Desideria terrena fugiamus, nihil nos jam delectet in infimis, qui patrem habemus in cœlis. Et hoc nobis est magnopere perpendendum: quia is qui placidus ascendit, terribilis redibit: et quidquid nobis cum mansuetudine præcepit, hoc a nobis cum districtione exiget. Nemo ergo indulta pœnitentiæ tempora parvipendat: nemo curam sui, dum valet, agere negligat: quia Redemptor noster tanto tunc in iudicium districtior veniet, quanto nobis ante iudicium magnam patientiam prærogavit. Hæc itaque vobiscum, fratres, agite: hæc in mente sedula cogitatione versate. Quamvis adhuc rerum perturbationibus animus fluctuet: jam tamen spei vestræ anchoram in æternam patriam figite, intentionem mentis in vera luce solidate. Ecce ad cœlum ascendisse Dominum audivimus. Hoc ergo servemus in meditatione, quod credimus. Et si adhuc hic tenemur infirmitate corporis, sequamur tamen eum passibus amoris. Non autem deserit desiderium nostrum ipse qui dedit, Jesus Christus Dominus noster, qui vivit et regnat cum Deo Patre in unitate Spiritus Sancti Deus, per omnia secula seculorum. Amen.

III. HYMNUS DE DIE IUDICII.

(Cf. Passus Tertius.)

Apparebit repentina dies magna domini,
Fur obscura velut nocte improvisos occupans.

Brevis totus tum parebit prisci luxus saeculi,
Totum simul cum clarebit praeterisse saeculum.

Clangor tubae per quaternas terrae plagas concinens,
Vivos una mortuosque Christo ciet obviam.

De coelesti iudex arce, maiestate fulgidus
Clarior angelorum choris comitatus aderit :

Erubescet orbis lunae, sol et obscurabitur,
Stellae cadent pallescentes, mundi tremet ambitus

Flamma, ignis anteibit iusti vultum iudicis, Coelos, terras et profundi fluctus ponti decorans.

Gloriosus in sublimi rex sedebit solio,
Angelorum tremebunda circumstabunt agmina.

Huius omnes ad electi colligentur dexteram,
Pravi pavent a sinistris hoedi velut foetidi :

Ite, dixit rex ad dextros, regnum coeli sumite,
Pater vobis quod paravit ante omne saeculum ;

Karitate qui fraterna me iuivistis pauperem,
Karitatis nunc mercedem reportate divites.

Laeti dicent : quando, Christe, pauperem te vidimus,
Te, rex magne, vel egentem miserati iuimus :

Magnus illis dicet iudex : cum iuistis pauperes,
Panem, domum, vestem dantes, me iuistis humiles.

Nec tardabit et sinistris loqui iustus arbiter :
In gehennae maledicti flammis hinc discedite ;

Obsecrantem me audire despexistis mendicum,
Nudo vestem non dedistis, neglexistis languidum.

Peccatores dicent : Christe, quando te vel pauperem,
Te, rex magne, vel infirmum contemnentes spreuimus.

Quibus contra iudex altus : mendicanti quamdiu
Opem ferre despexistis, me spreuistis improbi.

Retro ruent tum iniusti ignes in perpetuos,
Vermis quorum non morietur, flamma nec restinguitur,

Satan atro cum ministris quo tenetur carcere,
Fletus ubi mugitusque, strident omnes dentibus.

Tunc fideles ad coelestem sustollentur patriam,
Choros inter angelorum regni petent gaudia,

Urbis summae Hirusalem introibunt gloriam
Vera lucis atque pacis in qua fulget visio.

XPM. regem iam paterna claritate splendidum
Ubi celsa beatorum contemplantur agmina—

Ydri fraudes ergo cave, infirmes subleva, Aurum temne, fuge luxus si vis astra petere.

Zona clara castitatis lumbos nunc praecingere,
In occursum magni regis fer ardentis lampades.

IV. HOMILIA IN DIE EPIPHANIÆ.

(Cf. ll. 1126—1190.)

(§ 2.) Omnia quippe elementa auctorem suum venisse testata sunt. Ut enim de eis quiddam usu humano loquar : Deum hunc cæli esse cognoverunt, quia sub plantis ejus se calcabile præbuit. Terra cognovit, quia eo moriente contremuit. Sol cognovit, quia lucis suæ radios abscondit. Saxa et parietes cognoverunt, quia tempore mortis ejus scissa sunt. Infernus agnovit, quia hos quos tenebat mortuos, reddidit. Et tamen hunc, quem Dominum omnia insensibilia elementa senserunt, adhuc infidelium Judæorum corda Deum esse minime cognoscunt, et duriora saxis, scindi, ad pœnitendum nolunt : eumque confiteri abnegant, quem elementa, ut diximus, aut signis aut scissionibus Deum clamabant.—(In Evang. Lib. I. Homilia x.)

CRITICAL NOTES

CRITICAL NOTES.

PART I.

1. It must be borne in mind that the 'Christ' is a fragment; the beginning of the poem is lost; of the missing part a single word still remains, viz., cyninge (i.e. 'to the king'); this is the first word in the Exeter MS.; I have purposely omitted it, so as to give the appearance of completeness to the poem, but there is no authority for the capital letters. The first words of the MS. run as follows:—

cyninge . ðu eart se weall stan, etc.

1-4. cf. Matthew xxi. 42; Ephes. ii. 20-22; iv. 15, etc.

3. heafod, MS. heafð.

6. b[yri]g, the g is just visible in the MS.; after b there is what I take to be the upper part of a curved y still traceable, resembling in shape an o (certainly not u); the letters ri are conjectural.

eagna, originally -nan; the erased n is still visible.

9. forlæt, MS. forlæt.

11. cræftga, MS. cræstga.

12-14. cp. Amos ix. 11; Acts xv. 16.

13. hra can hardly be read, owing to the action of some liquid, which has almost obliterated a number of words on this and the next page of the MS.

15. cp. Luke i. 71.

17. þu reccend, MS. þa.

19. eadga, after ga, which comes at the end of the line in the MS., a small piece of parchment has been cut out; one letter at most could have been written on it; I am inclined to think that eadga is what the poet wrote; Grein reads—

‘eadgāð us siges, oðrum forwyrneð, wlitigan wilsīðes . . .’

20. wilsīpes, the last two letters can scarcely be read, the whole word is barely visible.

22. [Nu gemærsi]giāð, five or six letters are obliterated before -giāð; the reading in the text is purely conjectural; Gr. suggests [modgeomre halsi]giāð, but the space in the MS. renders the reading impossible.

23. hete . . . ceose, two or three letters are obliterated before ceose; the first of the missing letters was probably h, judging by the alliterative requirements of the line; her (i.e. ‘here,’ or ‘now’) should, perhaps, be supplied. Gr., ignoring the fact that the want of an alliterative word in the second half of the line is due to the obliteration of letters before ceose, suggested hēose for ceose, formulating an A. S. hēosan, ‘festinare’; later (Germania, 1865), he withdrew this suggestion in favour of [heo]fe (i.e. ‘with lamentation’).

I cannot detect, as Schipper seems to have been able to do in 1870, (v. Germania, 1874,) any trace of the reading to hofe before ceose; he adds, ‘das MS. ist hier jedoch schwer leserlich.’

25. wil-sīð, l-s almost obliterated in MS. but ið quite legible; Grein’s suggestion wyrnde, (Germania, 1865,) is therefore untenable; it would be best, perhaps, to take hwonne as directly dependent on sorgende, ‘yearning for the time when.’

29. þe he to wuldre forlet, ‘whom he hath admitted to glory.’

30. we, MS. þe.

32. se þe, hardly legible in MS.

41. geond-spreot, so MS.; Gr. geondspreat.

46. ryne gemiclað, lit. ‘enlargeth the course,’ i.e. ‘hasteneth the progress.’

48. ho[r]scene, MS. hoscne.

68. geneðde, so MS.; Gr. genedde (i.e. pp. of genēdan); but the MS. reading is obviously correct; genēdan = ‘to venture,’ ‘to strive.’ Thorpe was similarly troubled by the line, and suggested that a leaf was wanting after nearo.

69. hu, so MS.; Gr. nu.

76. mod, so MS.; Gr. emends to môt; but mod was often used in A. S. with special reference to human passions and desires, and might well be rendered by 'desire' in this passage.

90. solimæ, MS. solimę.

92. mund minne, so MS. ; Th. inne.

mund ; cp. Icel. mundr, 'the money paid by the bridegroom to the father of the bride,' also 'the bridegroom's gift to the bride'; this is seemingly the only recorded instance of the word in A. S. literature, here evidently used metaphorically. It must be carefully distinguished from mund, 'hand,' 'protection,' which is feminine, though ultimately the words may be connected.

97. wærgða, so MS. ; Gr. wærgðu.

103. earendel, it is difficult to translate the word adequately ; some bright star is evidently meant, probably the same as Örvandels-tá, 'Orwendel's toe,' mentioned in the Edda. Thor carried Orwendel from Jotunheim in a basket on his back ; Orwendel's toe stuck out of the basket, and got frozen ; Thor broke it off, and flung it at the sky, and made a star of it, which is called Örvandels-tá ; (v. Grimm's Deutsche Myth). That the story of Orwendel was Christianised in mediæval times is attested by the German story of Orendel in the Heldenbuch, where the hero wins 'the seamless coat' of his master. 'Earendel' does not occur elsewhere in A. S. poetry as a poetical designation of Christ ; the word is interpreted in the Epinal glossary by 'jubar.'

The spelling in the Erfurt Gloss 'oerendil' is noteworthy. It seems probable that 'Earendel' = Orion, the constellation brightest at winter-time, and Örvandels-tá = 'Rigel,' the chief star of the constellation.

Cp. the opening lines of Paradise Lost, Book iii. :—

'Hail, holy light, offspring of Heaven first-born !
Or of the Eternal co-eternal beam,' etc.

Cf. John i. 4, 9.

107. inlihtes, so MS. ; Gr. inlihtest.

112. bylðo, corrected in MS. from hyldo.

117. sceadu, corrected in MS. from sceaðu.

118. cf. John i. 1-5, 14.

127. bi gewyrhtum, 'accordingly to his deeds,' i.e. 'deservedly.'

132. eft, MS. est.

142. Read 'þætte sunu meotudes sylfa wolde.'
152. anum . . . ofer-þearfum, about five letters obliterated; Gr. anum oferþearfum, ignoring the missing word.
153. Hæftas hyge-geomre hider [gesece Ne læt] þe behindan þonne þu heonan cyrre. About ten letters are obliterated after hider; the bracketed words are purely conjectural; Gr. 'hider [gesohtest]: [ne] þe behindan nu læt'; this is obviously untenable, and was, no doubt, due to Thorpe's erroneous reading of the MS., 'hider . . . þe behindan . . . es nu læt.'
161. heannissum, so MS.; Gr. heahnissum.
162. ferh, so MS.; Gr. ferð.
168. worde, so MS.; probably a scribal error for worda, dependent on worn, unless the word must be construed with 'hæbbe gehyred,' 'I have heard in word,' i.e. 'I have heard spoken.'
187. gehwyrfed, so MS.; Gr. gewyrped.
188. nat-hwylces, so MS.; Gr. nat-hwylces [searo]; þurh nat-hwylces may, perhaps, be explained as a confusion of two constructions;—þurh nāt-hwylcne (the accusative after þurh), and nāt hwylces, (the gen. after nāt; cp. nāt he þara goda, Beow. 682.)
189. sprece, so MS.; Gr. spræce.
201. heag-engel, so MS.; Gr. heah-engel.
205. tir-fruma[n], MS. tir-fruma.
209. sunu, so MS.; Gr. sunā.
228. weoroda, so MS.; Gr. weroda.
229. forþ a, so MS.; Th. forþā (i.e. forþam); Gr. furþum.
238. Cp. Prov. viii. 22-31.
243. miltse, MS. miltse.
246. mægon, so MS.; Gr. magon.
256. eowde, d corrected from ð in MS.
274. mæra. Th. suggested that the word was due to an error of the scribe, and should properly be maria; there is no evidence for this view, but it is probable that the poet used mæra because of its likeness to maria,—the sort of popular etymology that the old homilists delighted in.
276. þara [þ] e gewurde, MS. þara ege wurde; a letter erased before ege.

280. selesten, so MS. ; Gr. selestan.

284. worl[d]cundra, MS. worcundra.

299. gehealden, this form is either the infinitive (= gehealdan), 'and thou shalt hold thyself immaculate,' dependent on þu sceolde, or it may, perhaps, be better construed as a past part., dependent on þu sceolde (wesan); cp. sceal gewrixled (wesan), l. 1259; in this case þe must be rendered as an accusative of regard, 'as for thee, Mary, thou shalt be held immaculate for aye.'

302. Esaias, an error for Ezekiel; cp. Ezek. xlv. 1-3.

309. Wende swiðe þæt ænig elda æfre meahste; one would expect ne before meahste, i.e. 'he felt sure that mortal might not,' etc.; the emendation may be unnecessary, if wende þæt = wende hu þæt, wende having almost the force of wundrade.

312. in-hebba, MS. in hebba; Gr. inhebban; the prefix evidently has the force of O. H. G. int, ent, 'to heave up' (O. H. G. intheffen); cp. in-bindan, 'to unbind,' e.g. an sceal in-bindan forstes fetre, 'one shall unbind the fetters of frost,' Gnostic Verses (Exeter Bk.), 75; both forms are hapaxlegomena.

321. stonded, so MS. ; Gr. stondað.

333. liopu-cægan, lit. 'a limb-key.'

338. motan, MS. motam.

360. nied, MS. med.

370. we, MS. þe.

395. *wear[di]a*ð, MS. wearð.

398. flihte, so MS. ; Gr. flyhte.

409. heannessum, so MS. ; Gr. heahnessum.

418. wiht, MS. niht (= uiht = wiht).

422. þrim, so MS. ; Gr. þrym.

P A R T II.

The poet has made very free use of Gregory's 29th Homily, sects. 9-11, in the second part of his poem. For convenience of reference, the text is printed in the appendix. Cynewulf's true poetical talent loses nothing by comparison with his original.

445. mund-heals, a hapaxlegomenon; (?) = mund-héals, (cp. héals-bóc), 'salus tutelæ,' i.e. 'the safety which comes from the protection (mund) afforded by another'; but cp. mund, l. 92, and the special use of heals in such compounds as heals-mægēð, Gen. 2155; heals-gebedda, Beow. 63; mund-heals may have had a similar meaning, 'beloved maiden.'

455. brega, so MS. ; Gr. brego.

493. cwomun, so MS. ; Gr. cwomon.

495. weardedun, MS. weardedum.

502. heredun, MS. heredum.

515. stóll, so MS. ; Gr. stól.

516-518. I take these lines to be the reply of Galileans; another interesting instance of the dramatic bent of Cynewulf's genius. Grein takes ll. 509-525 as one long speech. The MS. is in favour of my view of the passage, as a new section begins with l. 516.

518. gedryt, so MS. ; Gr. gedryht.

526. bifengun, a scribal error for bifangen, due probably to the Northern bifen of the archetype (cp. l. 1156).

536. wopes hring, 'a ring of weeping.' This phrase occurs four times in A. S. poetry, an instance occurring in each of the four poems, Elene, Guthlac, Andreas, and Christ; its peculiar force is somewhat doubtful; Grimm explains it as fletus intensissimus quasi circulatim erumpens; Grein connects hring with hringan, 'sonare'; I render the phrase by 'unbroken weeping,' taking 'hring' in its literal sense of 'ring,' the symbol of continuity.

538. hrēðer, MS. hreder.

539. beorn, MS. börn; bidon, MS. bidan.

547. al-beorhte, MS æl-beorhte.

557. bireafod, so MS. ; Gr. bereafod.

558. hi, fem. sing. referring to helle (f.).

559. orlege, lit. 'war, strife, hostility,' also 'a place where hostility is shown,' as in this passage; cp. 'Cwædon ðæt hé on ðam beorge byrnan sceolde . . . gif hé monna dream of ðam orlege eft ne wolde sylfa gesecan, Guth. 167; also Guth. 426; 'orlege' in both passages = the place which Guthlac had selected for his dwelling, wresting it from the evil spirits.

563. ne meahstan, MS. ne,^{me}ahstan.

585. gehyrdan, so MS. ; Gr. gehyrdon.

589. wunat, so MS. ; Gr. wunap.

589-596. Note the rhyme and assonance, used to give special point to the passage.

613. yrmðu, so MS. ; Gr. yrmða.

614. [h]is, MS. is.

618. [wæs], evidently omitted by the scribe after sungen.

634. sunu, so MS. ; Gr. suna.

653. flyht, MS. flyt.

658-664. This digression on 'the arts and crafts' is a free paraphrase of the lines in Gregory's Homily, (see Appendix II.,) 'dedit vero dona hominibus ; quia misso desuper Spiritu, alii sermonem sapientiae, alii sermonem scientiae, alii gratiam virtutum, alii gratiam curationum, alii genera linguarum, alii interpretationem tribuit sermonum. Dedit ergo dona hominibus.' In comparing the Anglo-Saxon and Latin two points are noteworthy ; in the first place, the amplification of the theme, so as to include secular as well as spiritual gifts ; in the second place, the addition of God's motive in not giving all His gifts to any one man ; this is not in the original. It is clear that the poet, when he came to the passage in Gregory's Homily, was reminded of a poem, written, in all probability by himself, at an earlier period, preserved in the Exeter MS. and known as 'Manna Cræftas.' A comparison of the lines under discussion and the poem brings out a large number of parallelisms of expression. I am inclined to think that Gregory's Commentary on Job, xxxviii. 4-5, was the original of the poem. Here we have the motive, which is not in the Homily. At the same time I should not be surprised to find a passage in Gregory's works even nearer to the Anglo-Saxon. The original of ll. 682-4 should be words to this effect :—

'Non enim uni dantur omnia, ne in superbiam elatus cadat.'

(Cp. Gregory, Lib. 1, Homilia x. sect. 32, on Ezekiel iii. 13, with marginal note, 'cur divisiones gratiarum sint.')

672. sumum, MS. sum^u.

677. heanne, so MS. ; Gr. heahne.
 683. him, MS. hī ; Th. Gr. 'MS. hi.'
 697. lixed, MS. lixed.
 708. feodan, between o and d a letter erased in MS.
 709. blæd, MS. blæð.
 711. dauiþes, so MS. ; Gr. dauides.
 718. ealle, so MS. ; Th. Gr. 'MS. eall.'
 723. gebyrða, so MS., either the nom. plural, or a scribal error for gebyrðu.
 730. hell-warena ; MS. hell-werena ; cp. Juliana, 322, hell-warena cyning.
 739. gesawan, so MS. ; Gr. gesawon.
 742. eadgum, so MS. ; Th. Gr. 'MS. eadgu.'
 756. sellran, MS. sellān.
 761. eglum, MS. englum.
 765. fær-scyte, MS. fær,scyte.
 776. si, MS. s̄ .
 783. hleotan, h added by a later hand.
 789. ðy reþran, MS. dyreþran ; Th. emended to ðy reþran.
 795. læded, MS. lædað. 803. scæcen, so MS.
 799-806. v. 'Excursus on the Runes.'
 805. bilocen, so MS., (misprinted bilocan, Gr.)
 807. blac rasetteð, MS. blacra setteð ; Kemble, blac rasetteð ; Etm. blác rasceteð ; Gr. blac rasetteð ; cp. þat fyr meahthe réad rásettan, Boethius, Metre 9, (quoted by Grein with wrong reference, 11, 14 ;) in this latter passage, too, the editors read readra settan ; Gr. rightly corrects to read rasettan.
 808. recen reada, Th. recen-reada, 'the smoke red' ; Gr. recen reada ; leg, so MS. ; Th. Gr. lig.
 810. on tyhte ; Th. ontyhte, 'kindled.'
 812. gæsta, 'of guests,' so Th. ; Gr. gæsta, 'of spirits.'
 819. gæst-hofe, so MS. ; Gr. gast-hofe.
 820. on, so MS. ; Gr. in.
 826. beheofað, so MS. ; Gr. beofiað ; cp. Heora mædenu ne synt behéofode, 'virgines eorum ne sunt lamentatæ,' (Lambeth Psalter, 77, 63).
 829. baðe, MS. bade.

832. mæsta, so MS. ; Th. Gr. mæste.

834. cwaniendra, MS. cwañendra. cerge, so MS. ; 'Ettm. Gr. cearge.

841. leofra, so MS. ; Gr. leofre ; the change to the neuter is, perhaps, unnecessary, as the word probably anticipated a masculine noun, þær = sum stede hwær. eall, so MS., Gr. eal.

865. heahþu, so MS. ; Th. heahþū ; Gr. heahðum.

P A R T III.

The source of the third part of the poem is, undoubtedly, the hymn 'De die Judici,' (see Appendix III.,) as shown by Professor A. S. Cook, (Modern Language Notes, June 1889.) Special interest attaches to this hymn. It is certainly as old as the seventh century, for Bede refers to it in his work, De Metris. Daniel says of it: 'Juvat carmen fere totum e Scripturâ sacrâ depromptum comparare cum celebratissimo illo extremi iudicii præconio, Dies iræ, dies illa, quo majestate et terroribus, non sanctâ simplicitate et fide, superatur.'

873. genægeð, 'assaulteth'; genægan, with accus. of person, and gen. or instr. of thing; cp. 'we þec niða genægað, Guth. 261.

874-876. These lines do not paraphrase any words of the Latin hymn; they were, perhaps, vaguely suggested by the second couplet, 'brevis totus . . . sæculum.'

884. ealle, MS. healle.

894. onhælo gelac, 'the hidden hosts'; Gr. renders onhæle = 'entire'; no other instance occurs of 'onhæle' in the sense of 'whole'; the usual frequent usage is 'secret,' 'hidden'; cp. wid is þes wæsten, wræcsetla fela, eardas onhæle earmra gæsta, Guth. 268. Th. renders, 'an unsound assemblage'; Toller, 'the entire hosts.'

907. gebleod, cp. Ða wyrta gréowon mid menigfealdum blostmum mislice gebléode, 'the plants grew diversely coloured with manifold blossoms,' (the Anglo-Saxon version of the Hexameron of St. Basil, ed. Norman, 10, 36.)

920. þæt mæg wites to wearnunga (sc. wesan), 'that may be for the soul's warning.'

923. þonne, so MS., not þon as Th.

926. gehwone, MS. gehwore.

933-937; the poet has missed the point of the original:—
'erubescet orbis lunæ sol et obscurabitur.'

959. untweo, so Gr.; MS. untreo, an obvious scribal error, due, perhaps, to the rare use of untweo; no other instance of the word is recorded, but cp. untweofeald, 'untwéofealde tréowa,' (Boethius, Metre, 11, 95.)

adames, the first and second a in this word, as written in the MS., resemble the rounded Celtic a, and are different from the ordinary letter employed by the scribe.

960. gesargad, MS. gesargað; cp. gesargad, l. 969, where d was originally ð, the erased stroke is still visible.

977. þa, MS. þu.

978. scehdun, so MS., probably = scédun, past tense of scéadan, 'to separate'; Gr. suggests scéndun, 'von einem scénan, verwandt mit ahd. scónón, parcere? oder für sceldun = scildun schirmten?'

985. sundes getwæfde, 'bereft of swimming-craft'; Th., Gr., Toller, render sund, 'ocean,' 'cut off from the ocean.' I think the abstract use of the word in the sense of 'natatio' is preferable here; cp. 'he þe æt sunde oferflát,' Beow. 517.

1025. adames, cp. l. 959.

1041. liffruma, MS. liffruman.

1046. wera, so MS.; Th. Gr. read weras, making it subj. of magon; the change seems unnecessary, if bemipan is construed intransitively.

1078. motun, MS. motum.

1087. MS. bydyrned.

1089. The line is evidently defective; Gr. suggests [getéod] weorped.

1091. wita ne cupun, 'they did not know'; wita = witan; cupun used as auxiliary; Gr. construes wita as gen. plur. of wite, 'punishment'; cp. l. 1212, wita ne cupon, which Gr. treats similarly; the omission of the infinitive n in the phrase is, probably, due to the northern archetype.

1093. man-forwyrhtu, so MS. Th. forwyrhtū (i.e. um).

1099. genomian, so MS. ; Gr. gemonian.

1104. Lit. 'They shall see as their bane that which came to them best.'

1126, etc., cp. Appendix iv. ; the same passage was paraphrased by Aelfric, (see Homilies, ed. Thorpe, p. 108.)

1129. cwice, so MS. ; not cwico, as Th. Gr.

1130. þa hyra ; MS. þa þe hyra.

1133. The alliteration is wanting ; Gr. reads [hu] in hierusalem, etc. ; it is noteworthy that the chief initial letters in the line h, g, c approximate to alliterative effect, (? cp. l. 23.)

1156. bifēn, Northern or Mercian form of p.p. of bifōn ; cp. gedēnra, 1264.

1157. bibyrgde, MS. bibyrgede (i.e. bibyrgde), not bibyrgede, as Th., Gr.

1167. frean, MS. fream ; Gr. by a curious error has misread Th.'s note 'sream,' and taken it to refer to eah-stream.

1174. rindum, so MS. ; Th. Gr. roderum, (a remarkable error.)

1175. magun, MS. magum.

1207. hu, so MS. ; Gr. suggests hy.

1212. Cp. note, l. 1091.

1230. wenað, MS. wenað, (i.e. wenað.)

1245. motun, MS. motum.

1249. wlite, so MS. ; Th. Gr. slite.

1264. atol, neut. subst., or, perhaps, one should read atol-earfoða.

1269. þa, so MS. ; Th. Gr. þam (þā).

1282. ypæst, so MS. ; Gr. ypast.

1293. gefean, MS. gefeon.

1300. þon, so MS. ; Th. Gr. þonne.

1301. gescomeden, so MS. ; Gr. gescomedon.

1306. bigæð, I feel sure that here we have an instance of bigán in the sense of 'to confess,' (cp. M. H. G. bigehan,) though no instance is recorded in Anglo-Saxon lexicons. The more usual usage of the word is 'to commit'; Th. 'when they commit sins'; similarly, Gr. Toller.

1310. unbeted, MS. ð, corrected to d.

1317. lifes tiligan, 'to strive for life'; cp. 'ðonne he æt hilde sceall wið láð werud lifes tiligan,' (Salomon and Saturn, l. 159).

1318. dðolian, 'to endure.' I can see nothing against this straightforward way of rendering the word; Grein's view that it is O. H. G. adaljan, M. H. G. edelen, nobilitare, is untenable; the sense of the whole passage has, I think, escaped both Th. and Gr. The rendering of the former is quite meaningless. Gr. takes wille as equivalent to scyle, so that the lines, according to him, imply man's duty 'lifes tiligan syn-rust þwean,' etc.

1319. syn-rust þwean, so. MS.; Gr. þrean.

1328. innan, M.S. mnan; magun, MS. magum.

1336. mæðleð, MS. mædleð.

1346. hwonne, so MS.; Gr. ponne; the former reading is altogether preferable, hwonne depending on gears, 'ready for the day when'; lofstum, MS. loftum.

1349. onfengun, MS. onfengum.

1355. æfdon, MS. æfdon; the insertion of the n is, perhaps, unnecessary, as n is occasionally lost in consonantal-nan verbs, e.g. nemde, past tense of nemnan; but cp. geæfnde, l. 1428.

1369. MS. miccle.

1374. ywan, 'to show,' MS. yðan, 'to flow,' (probably due to an earlier error yþan.)

1380. leoþe, so MS.; Gr. leoðo (for leoþe).

1389. neorxnawang, the etymology of this Old English equivalent of the Latin paradisus has been satisfactorily solved by Mr. Henry Bradley (Acad. No. 911, p. 254); its Gothic representative would be nawi-rohsnē waggs, and its full form in Anglo-Saxon nēo-rohsna wang, 'field of the palaces of the dead.' There is, as yet, no evidence as to whether the word was of pagan or Christian origin; probably the former, being perhaps the Saxon equivalent of the Scandinavian óðainsakr.

1397. fremum, so MS.; not fírenum, as Th. Gr.

sealde, MS. sálde.

1411. [h]ingonge, MS. ingonge.

1421. biþeakte mid, so MS.; Gr. beþeakte mec mid.

1429. wære þe gelic; MS. wære wege lic.

1434. oft and-lata, Th. oft and lata; Gr. 'andlata (?) man erwartet die Bedeutung Backenstreiche oder Beschimpfung'; he punctuates accordingly:—

'and fore monna lufan min þrowade heafod hearmslege; hleor gebolade oft and-lata.' . . .

1445. heanne, MS. hean^{ne}; Gr. heahne.

1447. utgotun, so MS.; Gr. ut-guton.

1450. wite, corrected in MS. from wita.

1453. geseoð, Gr. suggests that this word may be from geséon, 'percolare,' comparing biséon, l. 1087, but éac geseon, l. 1456, makes it clear that this view is untenable.

gefremedun, so MS.; Gr. gefremedon.

1486. mec, so MS.; Th. Gr. me.

1487. heardra, Gr. heardre.

1488. swærra, Gr. swærre.

1489. gefæstnad, corrected in the MS. from gefæstnað.

1494. in heofonum, Th. Gr. on heofonum.

1495. wurde, MS. worde, an evident scribal error; cp. the previous line.

1508. geþegede, I take this word to be the weak past participle of geþicgan, 'to take'; hence 'taken by thirst'; similarly, æpelinga bearn ecgum ofþegde, Gen. 2002; Th. suggests geþregede, 'oppressed'; Gr. derives it from ge-þecgan, 'consumere,' suggesting, too, a possible connection with geþéwan (geþéon), i.e. geþegde = geþeowde; Toller follows Grein. It does not seem to have occurred to lexicographers to bring the word in connection with þicgan, the past participle of which verb seems to be singularly rare.

1511. dydan, so MS.; Gr. dydon.

1525. grimne, originally grimme, corrected in MS.

1529 swi[ð]ran, MS. swiran.

1532. sceat, MS. sçát.

1535. deofles, Th. Gr. deofoles; but MS. deofoles (i.e. deofles).

1541. sinnehte, so MS.; Gr. sin-nihte.

1575. nængum, so MS.; Gr. ængum.

1578. leoht and gæst, so MS.; Gr. lic and gæst; but cp. leoht and lif, (Widsith, 142.)

1594. lætað, so MS.; Gr. lætəð.

1596. bið, MS. bið.

1599. Gr. þonne mán [fremmað]

Hwæt him se waldend to wrace gesette.

1610. mo[r]þor, MS. moþor.

1620. bindenne, over the first n there is a badly-formed m, or three strokes resembling m.

1627. ower, MS. oper; Th. operne (?); Gr. ower.

1630. sin-nehte, so MS.; Gr. sin-nihte.

1632. [for-]hogdun, MS. hogdun, evidently an error for for-hogdun, or ne hogdun.

1633. berað beorhte frætwe, these words evidently render the Latin 'regni petent gaudia'; perhaps the poet read 'regni ferent gaudia.'

1645. beorhte, so MS.; Th. Gr. beorht.

1646. Gr. freogað folces weard : fæder ealra geweald hafað and healdeð haligra weorud.

I take l. 1647 as merely a poetical periphrasis for þone wealdendne and healdendne haligra weoruda.

1649. þær, MS. þæs.

1650. leohtra, so MS.; Gr. leohtre.

1661. giefe, MS. gief, after which there is an erasure.

1663. wlite scynast, Gr. wlite-scynast. dryhten, in the MS., is followed by :—:7, and a blank space of some three lines indicates the close of the poem. The next section of the MS. begins on the following page with a long flourish of capital letters.

AN EXCURSUS ON
THE CYNEWULF RUNES.

‘Her mæg findan foreþances gleaw
Se ðe hine lysteð leoðgiddunga Hwa þas fitte fegde.’

THE CYNEWULF RUNES.

CHRIST, 796—806.

THE Runes in this passage stand for the letters CYNWULF, and together form the name of the author. A similar artifice is found in three other poems—'Elene,' 'Juliana,' and 'The Fates of the Apostles.' 'Christ' and 'Juliana' are both in the Exeter Codex; 'Elene' and 'The Fates of the Apostles' in the Vercelli Codex; the latter poem consists of little more than 100 lines; it is certainly no very meritorious piece of work, and it seems strange that the poet should have been so anxious to attest his authorship thereof by a long Runic passage. In the MS. the poem immediately follows the 'Legend of Andreas,' and I am more and more inclined to regard it as a mere epilogue to this more ambitious epic, standing in exactly the same relationship therefore to it that the tenth passus of 'Elene' does to the whole poem. Its relationship is, perhaps, even closer, for, whereas the ninth passus of 'Elene' ends with 'finit,' there is no such indication of the ending of the poem in the case of 'Andreas.' At the present moment I can see nothing that militates against this view of the Cynewulfian authorship of this latter poem, and further investigation will enable us, I think, to claim that Cynewulf inserted his name in his four most important works—the epics on 'Christ,' 'Elene,' 'Juliana,' and 'Andreas.' The discovery of the runic passage at the end of 'The Fates of the Apostles' was made by Professor Napier some three years ago, and a transcript of the half-obliterated text was published by him in the Zeitschrift für deutsches Alterthum, vol. xxxiii. The four runic passages may be divided into two divisions; the first, in which the Runes stand merely for the letters of the poet's name; the second, in which the Runes discharge a two-fold function, representing not merely the letters of the poet's name, but also the words that the letters suggest, the names of the letters or homonyms. To the first class belongs the passage in 'Juliana'; to the second, the other three passages. The interpretation of the Runes in these latter passages is one of difficulty; in the first place, the lines in which they occur are by their very nature intended to puzzle the reader or the hearer, being almost riddles; in the second, several of the Runes bore different names at different periods, and we have not as much information on the subject as we need. Our chief sources of knowledge are the Runic alphabets, which, in many cases, have the names of the letters assigned throughout, and in some cases an interpretation of these names, and the 'Rune Poem,' printed by Hickes from a MS. now lost; in this poem each Rune is followed by its name, together with a short poetical interpretation of its meaning. The explanation of a Rune in any one of these passages should, I think, hold good when applied to the corresponding Rune in the other passages. For convenience of reference I print the four passages, substituting Roman letters for the Runes, and numbering each line.

1. C-Rune; the name of the rune in all the Runic alphabets is céu, i.e. 'a torch,' literally 'a pine'; the word is rare in A. S.; its sole use seems to have been as the runic-name; no other instance is recorded. In passage A, B, C, the poet is evidently using the rune to suggest to his hearers the adjective céu(e), i.e. 'keen,' 'bold,' 'active.' In passage B the temptation is strong to regard C-drusende as equivalent to 'a drooping torch,' but in order to obtain this meaning, it is necessary to emend the MS., changing sæcc, 'discontent,' into secg, 'man'; moreover drusian is specially used in the sense of 'to become inactive' (by reason of old age); cp. Phoenix, 368, he drusende deaþ ne bisorgað. Cene drusende, i.e. 'the ageing warrior,' is, to my mind, the subject of the whole passage, and is added as explanatory of the words á wæs sæcc oð ðæt. I much doubt whether the words conveyed any other meaning to Cynewulf's hearers. I differ, too, from previous commentators in constructing þeah in direct connection with the first half-line, regarding cnyssed . . . drusende as a parenthesis.

² MS. neotað; Sievers, neosað.

³ N · ligeð, Sievers' suggestion.

The C-Rune in passage C is, as will be seen below, capable of similar interpretation.

2. Y-Rune. Its name in the A. S. alphabets is ýr; in the 'Rune Poem' ýr is described in words that lead one to render it as 'a bow':—

'yr biþ æþelinga and eorla gehwæs wyn and wyrþmynd, byþ on widge fæger, fæstlic on færeldre fyrðgeatewa sum.'

Yet, in spite of the Rune poem, ýr cannot have meant 'a bow' in A. S.; ýr is the old Norse equivalent of the A. S. éow, 'yew,' which latter word is actually the name of another rune in the Rune-Poem; it is therefore a fair inference that the interpretation of the Y-Rune as a 'bow' in this one place is due to Scandinavian influence on the writer of the passage in question, seeing also that in the Scandinavian Runic alphabet the letter bears the same name ýr, constantly glossed 'arcus'; probably the whole idea of the Rune-Poem was suggested by similar Scandinavian poems, and the writer did not recognise that the Norse ýr, in the sense of 'bow,' was identical with the A. S. éow, 'yew-tree'; as a modern poet has it:—

'Dark down the windy vale I grow,
The father of the fateful Bow.'¹

In my opinion, no ordinary Anglo-Saxon would have been able to give any meaning at all to ýr as the name of the Y-rune, and if told by a scholar that it meant 'a bow,' he would have failed to see any reason for the name; the shape of the rune in A. S.  certainly does not suggest 'a bow,' though the name applies excellently to the Scandinavian . The Y-Rune must have been a fairly late creation in A. S., and its symbol is rightly nothing but a modification of the U-Rune, ; similarly the name of the rune, i.e. ýr, is, I take it, merely due to the unlauted form of the name of the U-Rune, i.e. úr; the rune and its name probably passed from England to Scandinavia, and there it was naturally interpreted to mean ýr, 'a bow.'

How then is the rune to be interpreted, as used by Cynewulf?

In passage A, it seemingly might stand for yrmdo, 'misery'; and this view has been held by most scholars—Thorpe, Kemble, Grein; several points might be urged against the interpretation, and however plausible the suggestion seems, it is, I now think, quite untenable. Apart from other tests, the interpretation will not hold good for passage B. Grimm, Grein, Zupitza, etc., construe the rune in this latter passage as 'bow'; Leo suggests that it is equivalent to the A. S. rune éa, and = eær, i.e. 'earth,' 'the grave,' here = 'verfall der kräfte'; Reiger would substitute the rune æ, and read æðil (= A. S. æðel); similarly in passage A he would substitute Northumbrian ædil = A. S. vædl, 'mendicitas.'

In passage C, the words represented by the C-Rune and Y-Rune, which are co-ordinated, must evidently be the same part of speech; if C = céne, 'the bold warrior,' in the same sense as in the other passages, one would expect Y to stand for an adjective or substantive, in any case of masculine gender; but in passage A the Y-Rune is co-ordinated with the N-Rune; concerning the meaning of this latter rune there is no doubt; it represents the abstract noun nyð, 'necessity'; therefore the Y-Rune in this latter passage must, I think, stand for some similar abstract noun. Judging by A and C, the Y-Rune represents a y-word that can discharge the two-fold functions of a masculine adjective (or noun) and of an abstract noun. The only Anglo-Saxon word that satisfies these requirements is yfel = (1) wretched; (2) affliction; and there is, I venture to think, strong reasons for favouring this interpretation of the Y-Rune in the three passages. In passage A, yfel and nyð = 'affliction and distress'; in passage B, yfel gnornode nydgefera = 'afflicted, mourned the companion of sorrow'; in passage C, cene and yfel = 'the bold warrior and the afflicted wretch.'

May not the name yfel have been suggested by the name of the W-Rune, i.e. wynn, 'joy,' being a sort of antithesis to it? The letter y would probably at first have followed w immediately in Runic alphabets arranged in the order of the Roman letters, before a special symbol was found for the double letter x. In Scandinavian alphabets no separate sign occurs for this latter sound, which is represented by the runes for hs.

3. N-Rune. The interpretation of this rune is simple. As regards passage A, N = nýd = 'necessity, hardship,' Y and N being the subject of meihtan. As regards B, the authorities vary on the question of the continuation of nýd and gefera; Grimm reads N gefera nearu sorge dreah; Ettmüller, N gefera, nearusorge dreah; Kemble, N gefere, nearu sorge dreah; Grein, Zupitza, etc., nydgefera, etc. The point of the expression nyd-gefera is, I think, that it serves the purpose of a double entendre; the poet uses it not merely to express its literal meaning 'the companion of sorrow'; 'yfel' (i.e. the Y-Rune) may well be described as nyd-gefera, i.e. 'the companion of the N-Rune' in the poet's name, (cp. gefera as a technical word in Ælfric's Grammar, wordes gefera = an adverb.)

A similar double entendre occurs, I think, in the next line; enge rune = (1) nearu-sorge, 'a constraining sorrow'; (2) a description of the N-Rune, 'the narrow rune,' †; in 'Cynwulf' this 'narrow rune' comes between two especially wide ones; hence, perhaps, the special point of the words.

In C, 'N liged' is the excellent reading suggested by Sievers; the letters are obliterated in the MS.

4. E-Rune. In A and C this rune does not occur, and it would seem that the poet styled himself in these passages 'Cynwulf,' and not 'Cynewulf' (on the philological aspect of the form 'Cynwulf,' see Sievers' remarks, Anglia xiii.). Thorpe noted concerning A that the absence of the rune E, and the want of connection in the sense, proved the loss of a couplet between wraþra wita and bipse; Grein similarly suggested the insertion of a line containing an E-Rune,

'hwæt him æfter dædum deman wille
[on þam E-fullan dæge engla dryhten] wraþra wita,'

interpreting 'E. full' = eh-full, = egefull, 'terribilis,' (usually E = eh, 'equus'). But the passage makes perfect sense without any interpolation, and the discovery of passage C corroborates this view; the space between nearowe and [cy]ninges peodom would not suffice for more than the words containing the N-Rune, as Sievers has pointed out in the article referred to above. Professor Napier was originally of opinion that the obliterated passage might have contained the E-Rune as well as the N-Rune.¹

In A, wraþra wita is, of course, the partitive genitive after hwæt; the subject of wille is clear in both A and D; the identity of expression in the two passages is remarkable.

The E-Rune in B = eh, 'horse'; the word fore that follows the rune has been variously interpreted—(1) as an adverb formerly; (2) as a preposition governing him; (3) = fōre, 'on the journey.' I prefer (2) 'before him'; the poet, I take it, was filled with grief when he watched the hunt, but could not join in it; otherwise the passage must mean, 'where once he had joined in the delights of the hunt, he now wandered sorrow-laden.'

5. W-Rune. The proper name of this rune = wyn, i.e. 'joy'; this name of the letter is given in the Salzburg Runic Alphabet, and an interesting piece of additional evidence exists, in the fact that jubililate is glossed ƿ sumiaþ, i.e. wynsumiaþ in the Ninety-ninth Psalm of the Oxford Interlinear Version, MS. Junius 27, (as pointed out by Professor Logeman;) uwinne is also the name of the Gothic letter in the Salzburg MS. A dialectical variety of wyn = wenn, which was probably identified with wén, i.e. 'hope'; hence the latter interpretation of the name of the rune. In the Runic poem the lines on W run as follows:—

‘w (wen) ne bruceþ, ðe can weana lyt, sares and sorge,’ etc.

If the rune is interpreted as wén = 'hope' in this passage, it is impossible to understand the lines; but wen ne = wenne = wynne, genitive of wyn, after bruceþ. Similarly in the Rhyme Poem, l. 76:—

¹ I may as well point out that I had printed the lines in Christ without the interpretation of the E-Rune, interpreting it as it stands in my text, before the discovery of the Fata Apost. fragment; I had noted, too, the value of the discovery as corroboration of the form 'Cynwulf,' before the appearance of Sievers' notable article; the same is true of my interpretation of the W-Rune as wyn (not wen, as previous editors).

'bonne lichoma ligeð · lima wynn friteþ ac him wen ne gewigeð,' etc.

there, too, wen ne = wenne = wynne.

In passage A, B, C, the rune is clearly to be interpreted wynn; Grein renders it wén in A, wen = wynn in B, Napier interpreted the rune in C as wén, Sievers as wynn (see Anglia xiii.). The letters of the alphabet in Anglo-Saxon are masculine; hence se W., although wynn is feminine.

U-Rune. The name of the rune in the Runic Alphabets = úr, interpreted to mean 'a bull,' cp. Runic Poem, l. 4:—

U (ur) biþ anmod and ofer-hyrned,
'the bull is fierce with horns above his head.'

The rune in A, B, and C, has baffled the ingenuity of commentators. As regards A, Kemble, Thorpe, and Grein, take the letter to represent úr, formerly; but the adverb does not occur in Anglo-Saxon; its equivalent, or, is used only as a prefix; and although at first sight it seems that some adverb must be understood in this place, the objections against úr are insurmountable; I had thought it possible that perhaps iu, 'formerly,' might have stood, but I retract this view now. As regards the rune in B, Grimm takes it merely as the letter U, and makes it represent the whole name of the poet—'Cynewulf war ehemals die wonne der jugend'; Kemble, 'U (I was of old) a gleam of youth'; Leo, úr=ór, 'sonst war gold der jugendzeit-wonneglanz'; Grein interprets B in the same way as A, 'olim'; Zupitza, úr='aurochse'; the scholars that interpret the rune as equivalent to úr, 'bull,' take it to mean 'property' in general, comparing the use of fēoh, but there is absolutely no evidence in favour of this view, and Sievers' interpretation of U on eðle in C, 'das gut im erbsitze,' seems to me untenable. The only Anglo-Saxon word that will satisfy the three passages seems to be the possessive pronoun úr, 'our'; Dr. Cosijn (in 'Verslagen en mededeelingen der koninklijke Akademie van Wetenschappen, Afdeeling Letterkunde,' pp. 54-64) suggested the possibility of this interpretation, noting that úr is a frequent form of the pronoun in the Vespasian Psalter; but more important evidence in favour of the view exists in the fact that in a Runic Alphabet (Domitian,

A, 9) the rune is actually glossed 'noster.' It is strange that this point has not been noticed; it confirms the probability. The alphabet in question is printed in Hicke's, p. 136. Finally, therefore, A=úr . . . lifwynna dæl; B=úr . . . geogoðshades glæm; C=úr wynn on eðle. In A 'longe'='long ago'; cp. Ex. 557, 'wile nu gelæstan, þæt he lange gehet.' I take it that the words in A refer to the Deluge. With the phrase wynn on eðle in C, cp. Rune Poem. l. 38—

eoh byþ . . . wyn on eþle.

7, 8. L and F call for no special comment; the name of the former, lagu, and of the latter, féoh, fit the passages in which they occur.

In the following rendering of the passages in question I have attempted to bring out the peculiar force of the original. In A, B, C, the Runic letters (i.e. their Roman equivalents) CYNE WULF stand respectively for the following words:—Cén(e), yfel, nyd, eh, wynn, úr, lagu, féoh; their English equivalents are printed in italics.

A.

- C· Then the Keen shall quake; he shall hear the Lord, the heaven's Ruler, utter words of wrath
to those who in the world obeyed Him ill, Y·N· while affliction and distress most easily might find solace. There many afear'd shall wearily await upon that plain what dire penalty He will adjudge to them, W· according to their deeds. The winsomeness of earthy gauds
U· shall then be changed. Long time ago our portion of life's joys
L· was all encompassed by water-floods,
F· yea, all our possessions upon earth; then each precious thing
shall be consumed in fire.

B.

Till then was nought but discontent,— C· a bold warrior, drooping with age, buffeted by waves of care,—
yea, though in the mead-hall he received precious gifts, Y·N· apple-shaped gold. In his affliction, sorrow's comrade murmured ; grief, the narrowing rune, E· constrained him, when he beheld the horse measuring the mile-paths, rushing proudly on,
W· decked with adornments. Joy is now lessened,
and delight, after many a year ; youth is gone, U· the pride of old. Ours was once youth's glorious radiance ; now, at appointed time, those days of yore have passed away,
L· life's joy hath departed, as the waters ebb, the rushing floods. Transitory 'neath heaven
F· is the wealth of every man.

C.

A man of cunning thought may here discover,
if he taketh pleasure in song,
F· who wrought this lay. Wealth cometh last, the friend of man on earth, while he dwelleth in the world,
but they cannot keep together always.
U·W· Our earthly joy shall fade, and the frail gauds of the flesh
L· shall afterwards decay, even as water glideth away.
C·Y· Bold warrior and afflicted wretch shall then crave help, N· in the anxious watches of the night ; but Destiny o'errules, the King exacts their service. Now thou canst know, who was revealed to men in these words.

D.

Sad shall depart

C · Y · and N · ; the King will be stern, the Bestower of victory, when, sin-stained,
E · W · and U · trembling shall await what He will adjudge to them, according to their deeds, as life's reward ; L · F · shall quake, and linger sorrowful. All the pain I shall remember, the wounds of the sins, which I, early or late,
wrought in the world.
